Director's Message

Greetings to all!

Remember to celebrate milestones as you prepare for the road ahead - Nelson Mandela

I am reminded of how these wise words are so true as the batch of 2020-22 graduated during the 61st Annual Convocation of the Institute on 26 May 2022. This was one of the remarkable milestones of their cherished lives as they move forward in the professional world hopeful of making their mark with every step they take.

Who better than a distinguished alumnus of the Institute to be the Chief Guest of the Convocation ceremony, to inspire these graduating students to dream and work hard for it? Mr Ashish Kumar Srivastava, MD & CEO, PNB MetLife India Insurance Co. Ltd and an alumnus of the Human Resource Management Programme consented to be a part of the ceremony, this time from the other side than where he was 31 years or three decades ago. His message was inspiring wherein he put his learnings and experiences of his college days for these young professionals to better understand the growth and transition into the corporate world. His acknowledgment that he still keeps coming back to the values of XISS because these values are the differential element that sets him apart, was a remarkable endorsement of the Jesuit values taught in the Institution.

The homecoming of an alumnus stirs up the memories for all and it has reminded me of the times when I've attended the convocation ceremonies of XISS as a Chairman and for the third time this year as a Director. The growth of the Institute in these past years makes me very proud of how far we have come with our special focus on the academic rigour where policy decisions and its implementation models have been revamped and are truly working in the right direction. The revision of the Course-curriculum, students coming up as decision-makers, grabbing better placement opportunities, achievements of the Faculty, Corporate interface, and collaborations strengthen our say even more of a better and more focused XISS.

Convocation not just graduates a batch, but it elevates the two-year association of the students with their faculty, staff, and peers to a much higher level of understanding. After two years of creating memories, standing through thick and thin of one another, cherishing the good times, and learning through those tough ones, I am sure each one of our students must have felt it once inside the campus. Needless, to say, the Faculty and Staff of XISS are incredibly proud of each student. This passing batch not only has completed an important step on their path to becoming leaders in the future, but they have made it here despite the considerable challenges during the Corona times. They joined the campus in an online mode and were exposed to formats that were completely new and unexpected. But they put their heads in and began to learn their programs, learned new ways and means to build their knowledge and skills, showing their resilience and ability to adapt and continue with learning on display for each one of us to admire, appreciate and applaud. No thank-yous will be enough for these special students and their friends and families for their constant support in helping them reach this incredible milestone while facing challenging circumstances.

This batch has graduated when the world needs them. The pandemic has highlighted several critical aspects in the issue related to the world of work that were not addressed but needs to be resolved now. I am sure they will rise to the challenge and prove their mettle to the world.

The students are all set to break their cocoon and are raring to venture out into the world. Similarly, the Institute has set targets for itself through a way forward- a roadmap for the future. Since, Academics is the core strength of the Institute, more academic rigour, Enhanced quality of curricula, pedagogy, case studies, research, publications, and high-quality human power with required skills will be brought in the days to come. Special focus is to be given to revamping the Research & Planning Department and having thematic areas of engagement in – climate change, public policies, tribal and subaltern studies, counseling, gender equality, and so on. XISS is determined to focus on consultancies, new certificate programmes for the working people, and Fellowship programmes in the future.

Alumni Network, Corporate Interface, and International Connect are where our strength lies, and in the roadmap for the future, we wish to pay more specific attention to them. XISS plans on setting up an Incubation Centre and ensuring greater industry exposure to our students. Research collaboration and Exchange programmes with foreign universities are our concern at the moment.

With plans in mind, comes growth and it means changes. Thus, XISS's ambitious new change is a new XISS Campus with state-of-the-art facilities followed by XISS University Plans which is underway with the setting up of the XISS University Task Force to take things forward.

All these plans are in alignment with our XISS Vision 2025, to take XISS among the top 30 B-Schools in the country. The time is short, but our zeal is at its height and we are convinced to overcome all hurdles and be on the top.

I would like to again extend my heartiest congratulations to all graduating students and very especially to the recipients of medals and awards! Keep XISS in your hearts and visit your alma mater. It's not a goodbye but a wish to meet you all again at the XISS Campus. I hope to see XISS flourish, reach the zenith of success, and become the epitome of intellectual hub with industry connect.

Chief Guest's Address

Graduating students receive lessons of success in corporate world from Ashish Kumar Srivastava, CEO & MD, PNB Metlife, an illustrious alumnus of PGDPM (Batch 1989-91) of XISS

"I want to congratulate all the graduating students as you transition into the corporate world. As a student of XISS, I had an excellent opportunity to receive world class education. I keep coming back to the values because those values will be your differential element too. There is a huge expectation of potential and enthusiasm from you. I am very confident that you are going to be very successful. Your journey of success is the testament of the vision of XISS".

Advising the students to keep up the pace with the changing world he further added, "There are social tension and technological revolution which you are going to be exposed to because technology is changing and the future of work is modernizing. Now the data and its complexity are solved with help of Artificial Intelligence. Till now small automation and robotization was fine but now more complex things are here and because of this the way we work is going to change. One of the things to keep pace is continuous learning. There is a big opportunity outside whether you want to work or join a startup. You need to be updated with the changing world. Go out there and challenge yourself, ask your questions because you can change the world and you will."

Mr Ashish Kumar Srivastava delivering the convocation address
